WEDNESDAY, JULY 23. 1740.

1587.

Yesterday arriv'd a Mail from Holland.

Peterborough, July 2. N. S.

Two Prussian Officers that were in Custody for enlisting the Subjects of the Curia in the Service of their late King, are by her Majesty's Order set at Liberty. General Keith who arriv'd lately from Paris, to which City he went for Cure of a Wound that he receiv'd last War in is so well that he walks without a Staff. General Apraxin is on his Departure for the City, to receive the new Ambassador from Persia, and is said, that in the passage thro' Osn and can be in to cause several Persons tax'd with Crimes and Misdemeanours to be apprehended. July 21. N. S. Several Pieces are published by the Courts of Hesse-Cassel and Mainz, touching the Differences between them upon Account of a certain Territory situate on the Frontiers of Nassau, and the March of Troops on both Sides supporting their respective Pretensions. The Elector of Mainz asserts, that Prince William of Hesse is the Aggressor, and that he always refus'd to condescend to the Accommodation that he had proposed to him, but this is flatly contradicted in the Writings of the Court of Hesse.

July 8. N. S. We have Advice that the French Ambassador is arriv'd from Constantinople at Aleppo, accompany'd by a Capigi Bassa, who is to deliver him to Algier and Tunis, to conclude a Peace betwixt his Sicilian Majesty and those Regencies. The Letters from Algier say, That the Regency having invited the Regency to accede to a late Treaty with Sicily, the Dey instantly summoned a Divan, in which several Members represented that as the Regency was at Peace with most of the Powers of Europe, if they should also come to an Accommodation with the King of the Two Sicilies, their States of Italy would do the like, and there would be no more Business for their Privateers; therefore they were against making a Peace with that Prince, but upon such Terms as should be up to the Regency what they would lose by giving their Ships from cruising upon the Neapolitan Coast. Other Members declar'd, that instead of new Treaties with the Christians, it would be better to break all that were subsisting with them, and to mind nothing hereafter but Privateering. But this violent Advice was rejected, and it was resolv'd to enter upon a Treaty of Peace with the King of the Two Sicilies, on Condition that he engage to send a considerable Present every Year to the Regency.

July 10. N. S. Affairs in the Conclave still in the same State; the Spanish Cardinals strongly support the Interest of Cardinal Aldobrandini; who was formerly Nuncio at Madrid a strong form'd against him, for fear that if he should be chosen Pope he will be too much attach'd to the Interest of Spain. On the other hand, the Zealots endeavour to conform to the Intentions of the Crown, and have form'd a Sort of League to maintain the Independency of the Conclave.

The Chevalier de St. George return'd this Day from Albano with his Sons, accompany'd by Lord Inverness, Lord Dunbar, and several other Persons of Distinction. Cardinal Alici cannot be resolv'd on as yet to return from Albano to the Conclave.

Madrid, July 5. N. S. By a Ship arriv'd at Cadix the West-Indies there's Advice, that the Indians of Peru had endeavour'd to raise a Rebellion; one of the Natives who was in high Esteem in the Country, and pretended to be a Descendant from the ancient Incas, had form'd a considerable Party to proclaim'd King of Cusco; and that some of the Nation had actually form'd a Design to take and massacre the Spaniards; but that the Plot was discover'd, and the Head of the Conspiracy apprehended and put to Death, with twelve of his chief Complices.

Berlin, July 23. N. S. In the Harangue which the Learned M. de Beaufobre made to the Queen on the 11th, when he waited on her with the Homages of the French Refugees; after complimenting her Majesty on her Modesty and other excellent Qualities, he said,

'Heaven, MADAM, has granted us a Sovereign worthy of the Choice of the whole World; and if all Mankind could be assembled, I question whether it would desire another. All his Measures are wisely concerted. He has made Provision for the most pressing Necessities. He has check'd the Injustice and Violence of those who abusing his Favour might be apt to oppress the People, under the specious Pretence of enriching the Sovereign. The Emulation alone makes Great Men, yet they have need of Encouragement and Rewards; and these they are sure of under a Monarch who is so capable a Judge of Merit, &c.'

In his Speech to the Queen-Mother, he expressed the Condolance of the French Refugees with her Majesty for the Loss of the late King, and their Gratitude to her Majesty, for the Care she had taken to form the Heart of his present Majesty, by the Sentiments with which she had inspir'd him; inasmuch that while other young Princes thought of nothing but Mirth and Pleasure, the King, who always had the Kingdom in his View to which he was Heir, had devoted his early Years to Reading, and to the Study of every Thing that might inform him of the Duties of a Sovereign that seeks after true Glory, and knows that it only consists in the Happiness of his People, &c.

His Majesty has graciously been pleas'd to receive an Epistle in Verse from the Poet Voltaire, wherein he does Homage to his Majesty's illustrious Qualities: He calls his Reign the Reign of a Philosopher, and styles him the Solomon of the North.

Paris, July 22. N. S. We have Letters from Smyrna by the Way of Marseilles, which bring the following among other Particulars of the Situation of Affairs in Persia and Turkey; viz. 'That Kouli Kan was return'd to Ispahan with the Treasure he acquir'd in the Indies, and had cal'd his Subjects of the extraordinary Taxes which had been impos'd upon them since the Rebellion of Meriwis. That he afterwards form'd two powerful Armies, one of which was to make an Incursion into the Turkish Armenia, and form the Siege of Erzerum, and that he was to march in Person with the other to attack Bagdat, where it was believ'd he had maintain'd a secret Correspondence for a good while. As to the Porte, there have lately been such Disturbances as are like to oblige the Grand Seigneur to sacrifice the Grand Vizier, and several other Favourites, to the Rage of the Janizaries and the Populace.'

Vienna, July 16. Ali Bassa, the Commander at Belgrade, has acquiesc'd General Schmettau, that the Grand Vizier is deposed, and the Cassimacem, who is represented in general as very favourable to the Christians, is put into his Place.

Dresden, July 13. The Duke of Brunswick Wolfenbuttel sent an Officer higher last Week, to desire that the Auxiliary Troops which that Prince had supply'd the Emperor with during the late War in Hungary might return through this Country, which was granted; 'tis assur'd they are free from any contagious Distemper, so that 'tis hop'd the Caution which this Government has hitherto taken against the Infection will not be frustrated by this Permission.

Hanover, July 27. N. S. On Saturday Morning last his Majesty, attended by Prince William of Hesse and the whole Court, went to a Plain near Hefenhausen, where the three Troops of Horse Guards pass'd in Review before his Majesty: They performed their Exercise both on Horseback and on Foot, and went through their several Firings: His Majesty was well pleas'd with their Performance.

No Words can sufficiently express its virtues; for it is not of the Nature of Paint, which produces an unnatural Gloss on the Skin; but is a Remedy that its Use, really gives a Lustre to the most Beautiful, by taking the fine Features of the Face, and is so safe, as not the least Grain of Mercury in it, that it may be taken and it smelled to, is really good against Vapours.
